NOTE: These FY22 financials include the value of donated and purchased food. Food donations and distributions of donated product are recorded at the weighted average wholesale value in effect during the year.

Dear Friends and Partners:

Before the start of the pandemic, the national overall food insecurity rate had reached its lowest point since it began being measured in the 1990s. In 2019 more than 35 million Americans were food insecure. It has now been reported that an estimated 45 million people, including 15 million children, may have experienced food insecurity in 2020. Here at Food Bank of the Albemarle, we saw an unprecedented increase of almost 60% due to the pandemic and the hardships people were facing, many for the first time. Within weeks, thousands of people in our communities were faced with the reality of being unemployed or having reduced work hours.

Coming out of the Pandemic in 2022 we are still experiencing unprecedented supply chain obstacles. Beginning in August of 2022, we began experiencing delays from our largest source of food. The NC Department of Agriculture, specifically the Emergency Food Assistance Program. This program is supported by the US Department of Agriculture.

With your contributions, the support of growers and farmers and dedicated grants to purchase food we were able to provide more than 9.2 million meals for our neighbors.

None of this would have been possible without our kind-hearted volunteers and donors who stepped up to help. We would like to extend our deepest thanks to those who saw the need and stepped up to help. We take what we do seriously and feel so blessed to be able to continue our work of helping those that need us.

Liz Reasoner,
Executive Director
